Power and Light Was Key Note at Banquet

South Paris Board of Trade held a largely attended get-together, Tuesday evening at the Odd Fellows' dining hall. The ladies of the Congregational Church, the tables arranged in a hollow square, were decorated with lighted candles, and the room festooned with garlands of sprays and pussy willows. A report of the last meeting was read by the secretary, Lucian Davis. The prayer response was accepted. The Rev. Wm. W. Wadsworth, of Central Maine Power Co., was introduced by president Smith, who spoke at some length on the light and power situation in Maine. He urged more liberal use of electricity made in greater quantities for our nation's needs, and urged more liberal use of electricity made in harnessing our rivers.

Comments on the Battle of Gettysburg

By C. F. Whitman

The battle of Gettysburg, Penn., on the 1st, 2nd and 3rd days of July, 1863, between the Army of the Potomac under Gen. George G. Meade, and the Army of Northern Virginia under Gen. Robert E. Lee, is regarded by historians as the turning point in the Civil War, for the fortunes of the Southern Confederacy from that time waned till Gen. Lee on the 3d of April, 1865, surrounded his forces to Gen. U. S. Grant and it soon thereafter was a thing of memory. Each army had on the firing line men, in round numbers, about 85,000 men.

The field of conflict covered several square miles of territory with the village of Gettysburg within the circle of the contending forces, but only one person of its citizens—a woman, was killed. The enemy at the close of the battle, although it obtained possession of the town, but this was of no advantage, but rather a detriment.

The losses in both armies were very great, being over fifty thousand in killed, wounded and prisoners—that of the Confederates being at least thirty thousand, before they re-crossed the Potomac.

Late in the evening of the 25th of June, 1863, Gen. James Longstreet, of the Union Army, had passed through the bersburg, Penn., the information that the Army of the Potomac was in the vicinity of Frederick, Md. Gen. Joseph Hooker made had superseded Gen. Joseph Hooker in command. This was communicated to Gen. Lee, who at once ordered the concentration of his forces on the east side of the South Mountain range, near the Chambersburg road, leading to Gettysburg. Longstreet's Corps and Gen. A. P. Hill's Corps were in the vicinity of Chambersburg when Gen. Stuart's Cavalry Corps was some thirty miles away, near York, Pa., and Gen. J. E. B. Stuart's cavalry was having a white ride around the Union Army.

It is very probable that military writers to be the eyes of an army, so it would seem that Lee was very bold, not to say rash, in moving his troops into his enemy's territory without knowing just what was about to encounter him. It is true that the Union army was still at Frederick City or at least no nearer to Gettysburg than Emmetsburg—ten miles away. But the most significant thing about this concentrating his army at Gettysburg was it would leave the Army of the Potomac between it and Virginia. It could only mean that he intended offensive fighting.

afterwards. It led, as it finally turned out, to the failure of his campaign.

The safe course for Gen. Lee was to concentrate his army at some point up the Pamunkey river, where he knew he had marched North, like Hagerstown and moved to Frederick City, thus placing his forces between the Union Army and Virginia, where he could choose his own battlefield, with all his forces in hand.

Let us now turn to July 1, with Gen. Hill's troops on the march to Gettysburg. Gen. John Buford's Division of Cavalry, 15,000 men, a strong, well-dismounted, was posted at the stream which crosses the Chambersburg road some mile and a half from Gettysburg. Gen. John F. Reynolds, with his Division of 15,000 men, was near at hand and Gen. G. O. Howard's 11th Corps of 9,600 was not far behind.

Reynolds, while Gen. Daniel E. Sickles with his 3rd Corps of 11,000 men which was at or near Emmettsburg, was ready at the call of Reynolds to go to his support. The action soon opened and Reynolds, while posting his troops in the woods bordering the little stream, was shot and killed by a Confederate sharpshooter concealed from view in a tree.

Thus fell the gallant soldier who should have been in command of the army instead of Meade.

It seems that Meade at Taneytown, Md., fifteen miles from Gettysburg, had selected Pipe Creek in the vicinity, where his flanks would be perfectly protected, as the best place to post his troops to meet the anticipated attack of Lee, but he did not come to this decision in time to prevent Reynolds from meeting the enemy at Gettysburg, thus making it necessary to send the rest of the Union troops forward to save the First and Eleventh Corps, from impending ruin. This resulted from Meade's spreading out the wings of his army thirty-five miles apart in moving northward from Frederick City. Under such conditions, one wing, if suddenly attacked, could not depend upon the other to go to its aid in time to prevent disaster and this actually happened. No one now knows why Reynolds should, under such circumstances, have brought on the battle as he did. He must be regarded as selecting Gettysburg as the pivoted battlefield of the war. By the valor of the First Corps troops and the mistakes of Lee, it turned out well for the Union cause, however.

As Howard's Corps arrived on the field, he saw the importance of occupying Cemetery hill and he posted Gen. Stein-wer's Division upon it. His other Divisions were formed north of the town—joining the left of the First Corps lines.

The First Corps troops, which fought with great bravery, held their positions with great tenacity until two Divisions of Gen. R. S. Ewell's Corps appeared on the field from the north and broke through the line of Howard's men. Then the soldiers of the First and Eleventh Corps were ordered to rally on Cemetery Hill. In executing this movement, several thou-and Union soldiers were captured in trying to get through the streets of the town. This was between four and five o'clock P. M. There was a lull in the fighting about half past one and Howard, who had succeeded to the command of the troops on the death of Reynolds.

might then have moved back his men with little loss to Cemetery Hill, but he was not equal to the emergency or did not care much for the lives of his soldiers.

Now we turn to the Confederate side, with Lee riding with his troops towards ...burg. A few miles away from the scene of action, he heard the roar of the guns from the conflict between some twenty-five thousand men of Gen. Hill's and Gen. Ewell's commands and about twenty thousand of Meade's army. He had not expected this and was greatly depressed and remarked in the presence of Gen. R. H. Anderson, a Division Commander of Gen. Hill: "I wonder what has become of Gen Stuart. In his absence I do not know what is in front of us. It may be but a part and it may be the whole of it."

whole army and we are repulsed, the passes through which we have come will shelter us from disaster." He said nothing of getting in such an event, possession of the Fairfield-Hagerstown road. No Confederate General who had not the greatest contempt for his foes, would have missed, if he could have helped it, getting control of that road, under such circumstances, for as an outlet from Gettysburg to Virginia, it was of more value to a defeated commander of the Confederate army than to the Union.

Lee called Longstreet to ride with him. As they arrived on Seminary Ridge, they saw the broken columns of Union troops who had been in action moving up Cemetery Hill, and were being attacked on Steinwehr's Division and Bu-rke's Cavalry, and formed in line by Howard and Gen. Hancock, who had been sent by Meade to represent him, on the field, as he had been.

He had heard at Taneytown of battle and death of Reynolds.

TRANSFIGURATION AND SERVICE

LESSON TEXT—Mark 9:2-29.
GOLDEN TEXT—"He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit; for apart from me ye can do nothing."

PRIMARY TOPIC—Jesus Shows His Glory.
JUNIOR TOPIC—Jesus Shows His Glory.

INTERMEDIATE AND SENIOR TOPIC—What Faith and Prayer Can Do.
YOUNG PEOPLE AND ADULT TOPIC—The Meaning of the Transfiguration.

When Christ announced His death which was to take place on the cross, the disciples were unable to see how victory could issue from death. Jesus took with Him Peter, James and John into the mountain.

Two men from the upper world were sent to converse with Jesus about His approaching death at Jerusalem—the very thing about which the disciples refused to talk. The transfiguration is therefore a foretaste of the coming kingdom.

I. Jesus Christ, Glorified on the Mountain (vv. 2, 3).

He took the disciples "by themselves" and was "transfigured before them." This shows that the purpose of the transfiguration terminated upon the disciples and not on Christ. Christ's rebuke of Peter for his unwillingness to hear concerning His death apparently for a time estranged the disciples from Him. To hear this breath of an unusual transaction was required. His shining raiment was typical of that glory which shall be manifest when Christ comes back to the earth. His appearance on the mountain typifies His visible appearance on the Mount of Olives (Zech. 14:4, 9).

II. Peter, James and John Represent Israel in the Flesh in Connection With the Kingdom (v. 2).

Christ is peculiarly the King of Israel. According to Ezekiel 37:21-27, the Israelites are to be the central people in the kingdom. This people shall be gathered from among the nations and united as one in that kingdom, in their own country.

III. Moses and Elias Appeared in Glory With Jesus (v. 4-13).

These men in the glorified state are typical of the state of the saints in glory. Moses, who was once denied an entrance into Palestine, appears now in glory representing the redeemed of the Lord who shall pass through death into the kingdom. Multitudes of the Lord's own who have fallen asleep shall be awakened at Christ's coming and pass into the kingdom. Elias represents the redeemed who shall pass into the kingdom through translation. Some shall be living upon the earth when the Lord shall come, and they, without dying, shall be changed and thus pass into the kingdom (1 Cor. 15:50-53; 1 Thess. 4:14-18).

1. Peter's proposal (vv. 5, 6).

So definitely was the method of the kingdom unfolded before Peter that he proposed to erect tabernacles for Christ, Moses and Elias. It is true that the unveiling of the majestic person of Christ and the panoramic display of the kingdom somewhat disconcerted Peter; yet he grasped its central meaning and proposed to celebrate the advent of the kingdom which had been prefigured in a tangible way.

2. The divine voice out of the cloud (vv. 7, 8).

God declared Jesus to be His beloved Son in whom He was well pleased. If one would know what is pleasing to God, let him study Jesus, who perfectly did His Father's will.

3. Jesus' charge (v. 9-13).

He charged them that they should tell no man concerning the things which they had seen until He had risen from the dead.

IV. A Demonstration of the Purpose of the Establishment of the Kingdom (vv. 14-29).

When they descended from the mountain of transfiguration they witnessed a great multitude in a state of perplexity. The immediate cause of this state was the grievous condition of a young man possessed with a demon (v. 18). The father of the young man had appealed to the disciples to cast the demon out, but they were unable to do so. When they brought him unto Jesus, the foul spirit was rebuked and came forth. This young man's state is representative of the nations who are oppressed by the Devil. Just as this young man was grievously oppressed, causing him to cast himself into the fire and into the waters, so the nations today in their perplexity are doing the things which will result in their own destruction. The Devil will be peculiarly active in the oppression of men and nations in the last days.

Getting Salvation

If we are going to get salvation, we have got to get it upon God's terms and not upon our own; and that is why I fear that a good many people will not get it—simply because they can't have their own way about it.—D. L. Moody.

Joshing the Elevator Man

The old fellows who run elevators in public buildings are notoriously deliberate and independent. A Detroit citizen, relates the News, was recently conveyed by one of these political favorites in a slow and dignified manner to the top of the post office building. Then the old man stopped and slowly and deliberately opened the door to let his passenger out. The passenger handed him a traffic cop's ticket for speeding. It made the old elevator man mad for two days.

American Historicals

By C. R. Mills

Chapter II

When Columbus returned from his voyage and reported the discovery of land, there was a great many people who wagged their heads wisely, and said, "I told you so," and, "We knew it all the time." Spain at that time was expanding as fast as the A. & P. Tea Co. and the king welcomed this new discovery which he thought might bring riches and glory to Spain.

Another Italian, gave up his hurry-gladly to enter the service of the king, and although we of a later day regard his explorations as of much less importance than those of Columbus, nevertheless Amerigo Vesputi had personality enough to put one over on the king and to have the whole darn Western Hemisphere named in his honor.

However we should be thankful that this intrepid navigator, chose to have his Christian name used in this connection, as I doubt if this great continent could have gained its present prominence, had it been saddled with the name of No. Vesputi or So. Vesputi, which we believe would inspire neither poetry nor patriotism.

Mr. Magellan was the next gentleman to grab off the head lines in the Barcelona News. He, like most of the other navigators of the time, regarded America as simply a barrier or windshield, to India, and their chief desire was to find a passage through to the spice markets of the far East. Mr. Magellan was persistent in his efforts to find a passage to India and finally, although his ships by this time were in bad straits, he discovered the way to the Pacific around So. America.

This passage is called the Straits of Magellan in memory of the straight he was in at that time. One of Magellan's ships eventually returned to Spain, being the first to circumnavigate the globe. At about this time another Italian entered the history books. He was Christopher Columbus. He ran a barber shop or a fruit stand but we do not know that he was commissioned by the king of England to see what he could do in the line of discovery. Spain was hogging all of the line and John Bull thought it about time to display some of his aggressiveness.

On this account John Cabot and Sebastian, his son, were placed in command of an exploring expedition. They discovered a part of No. America, but reported the New England climate as unfavorable for permanent settlements. These mariners reported encountering a vast school of horse manure, so numerous that they clogged the propellers, and the English people of that time, who had not been fed up on fish stories, fell for the yarn.

By this time Spain had obtained a foothold in the West Indies and a stranglehold on Mexico and Peru. Gold had been discovered and was lustily sought. Plantations sprang up all over the island, the pursuit of gold. Ponce de Leon, who had been prosperous as a planter in Porto Rico, developed a bad case of wanderlust and struck out for Miami Beach.

He found the natives as scantily attired, if perhaps not as conspicuous, as the present day winter resorters. Ponce dreamed that the land contained a fountain of perpetual youth, which would cause him to be young and over-indulgent of Tampa cigars. (No record that bootleggers were operating at that time). Now if Ponce had put his savings into house lots, eaten yeast cakes regularly, and substituted monkey glands, he might have pepped up considerably, but he clung to the delusion that somewhere in Florida was a fountain of youth, went really daffy on the subject, wouldn't even play hardy golf, until finally he reached an ignoble end; his hotel bills ate him up.

Joe Bonis, star forward of the famous "Never-sweats" indoor hockey team, has fully recovered from the painful neck injury received in the last hectic battle with the "Ruff-necks."

Trouble certainly comes in bunches. It was bad enough to have the "Colosseum" players break down, throwing away the expected citizens of Fryeburg and Wintworth City out of employment, but to lose the services of Judge C. S. Mason, at this time, is a blow from which few could expect a slight chance of recovery. Certainly no like calamity has visited the Colosseum plant since the Fliver Ed. left their employ.

Winter weather is still with us. Last week found a "little snow" at our old friend's, on Portland St. Roy says he doesn't mind a "wet bit of snow" on the house, but darned if he likes the smell.

Our professor of music, Mr. Hard, is having a fine foundation built for his new home on Bradley Boulevard. When musical director wouldn't discontinue an extra "tenner" to acquire a fine "less" Sir Archie, I suppose, is tired of living in "flats" and is willing to risk some.

Something With Ideas In It

By R. L. Cummings, West Paris

In reply to your request for letters as to what we like best in the paper, I will say that for me I like best something with an idea in it. Whether it agrees with mine or not.

Everything in this world begins with an idea. All the advancement ever made began with ideas. If people form an appetite for them they are more interested in them all the crossroads puzzles ever in the world. Our forefathers that formed the Plymouth colony and those of the surrounding country were men that had decided "ideas" and when those ideas were in conflict with the established church they thought it best to "get out". They came here with a charter to form a settlement. Their ideas were different than most of their predecessors. They wanted to be free to live here. Homes for themselves and those that were to follow them.

As to the individual that document stood in a general way that they were to have the rights of Englishmen. Every character I think contemplated that the system of "Feudalism" would prevail. William Penn came as the proprietor of a great tract of land. His father was a man of great wealth but little merit in other directions. The King had borrowed much money of him. The independence of the particular English type resisted excessive taxation. So the King borrowed, and eventually paid his debt by this grant. I have owned it. He was to rent it to others. Give them rights similar to those of the old country but the real title was not free from rent. It was the farmers (God bless them) that kicked over this idea of feudalism. The Englishman with his idea of his rights to live kicked over the Kings' asserted rights to tax him, and in many bloody revolts made the King subject to Parliament, which he had something to do with choosing, so that now the House of Commons and its chosen Prime Minister are the real government of England, and are more directly under the control of the people than our own government.

As far as I can learn these ideas did not start with the rich and powerful. Their wealth and power were usually gained by means of obtaining it from the labor of others. When the whip hand gets beyond the point where the common citizen will stand for it, he begins to think. Most of us are capable of doing so, but as a rule we prefer to go slightly on this matter until we are pinched. When this thinking becomes general then the big changes even though he be King or Czar are effected by all the powers the mind of man has ever been able to invent, his downfall is sure, and the farther the pendulum is forced to one side of the plumb line the farther it is bound to go to the other side. Ideas controlled by such ideas as were predominant when we became a nation.

While I am talking I wish to say a word to some of my friends that are in error. Some of my friends will remember that our strange officials were in 1924 supplied with information (Propaganda) from the National Committee of the Republican party (at least they said so) to the effect that certain Senators at Washington were seeking to overthrow the United States Government. That they were "Rods" Chief among these double dealers were Robert M. La Follette and Nelson K. Wheeler. The chief offense was committed when on Feb. 7th, 1924, Senator La Follette laid before the Senate the facts in regard to the fraudulent leasing of the great national oil reserves in California and Wyoming, now familiarly known as the Teapot Dome fraud.

The United States Supreme Court has pronounced the lease fraudulent and returned the oil lands to our government. Full and faithful (both members of our President's cabinet) have not yet escaped prison bars that threaten them and these great oil magnates that furnished the cash to corrupt them. Our powerful Republican leaders sought to stifle this investigation. President Coolidge asserted that there would be no resignations and no prosecutions. La Follette (A Republican) and Wheeler (A Democrat) with the help of that group sometimes called "The Farm Bloc" and sometimes called "Rods" and Bolsheviki, but known to their supporters as the progressive element of both the Republican and Democratic parties persisted and won.

For this public service these men were rewarded over this country as I have stated. In addition Senator Wheeler was prosecuted for alleged fraudulent practices in his own state of Montana and in Washington also investigated by a Senate Committee, but in each case discharged and completely exonerated. Have any of our Republican leaders apologized?

Not just a word to our own good Republican state of Maine. A very high official in our Republican State Committee recently made an attack on our Governor, who now aspires to a seat in the U. S. Senate. His chief offense was "Helping a Democrat" "Shades of Judas, Brutus and Arnold." What a crime! Unpardonable as this would seem to be, is it without precedent in the ranks of the Republican party.

Surely I think it is not. During the last Congress, these reactionary Republicans with the aid of the Democrats threw our Smith W. Brookhart of Iowa, because he had been too familiar with those progressive Republicans who had uncovered the oil scandals, and sent to the Democratic Dan Steak. Well, what did the state of Iowa do about it. They sent Brookhart back to occupy that seat from which they had expelled him with an overwhelming majority. So there he is today, and with six other Progressive Senators they hold the balance of power in this Congress between the Democrats on one side and the Reactionary Republicans on the other. One of the great charges against Governor Brewster is that if he should succeed Senator Hale he might be allying himself with this deadly seven that believe the people should wake up and rule in their own country.

In connection with this we should note the case of Smith of Ill. and Vane of Penn. Smith had the sum of $458,782.00 illegally expended to secure his nomination to the U. S. Senate. Vane of Penn. had the sum of more than $785,000.00 so expended in his primary campaign. The Senate voted that Smith was not entitled to his seat in the Senate, 50 to 32 and that Vane was not entitled to sit in the Senate, 55 to 29. It is a lamentable fact that both of our present senators Hale and Gould voted to seat them.

West Paris, Me., Feb. 5th 1928.

COME TO MAINE

I spent my last vacation down in Maine. When I left, they wanted me to come again. They were all so very good that I said I surely will spend my next vacation down in Maine.

Chorus
Come to Maine, come to Maine.
Come and spend your next vacation down in Maine.

The air is very healthy and the people think you're wealthy.
If you're spending your vacation down in Maine.

There are a loaded table down in Maine.
They give you all they are able, down in Maine.
It is always clean and neat, and you get enough to eat.
When you're spending your vacation down in Maine.

You can go a horseback riding down in Maine.
You can go toboggan sliding down in Maine.
You can go roller coasting and can do a lot of boating.
When you are taking your vacation down in Maine.

The girls are very pretty down in Maine.
They are also very witty, down in Maine.
They wear the silken hose and put powder on their nose.
Just the same as girls that don't live down in Maine.

Letter from Mid-Ocean

Written March 10, by Mrs. Roy Stockford, to Relatives in Denmark

Mr. and Mrs. A. S. Wentworth of Denmark, received the following letter written March 10, on board the S. S. Laurentia from their daughter, Mrs. Roy Stockford, terranau Cruise.

On board S. S. "Laurentia."
Dear Ma, Pa, Ed, Imogene, Alvin, Augustus and Jennie: As my letters will carry about the same things I am going to write to you all at one time. I don't know whether we shall speak to common people or not when we get back for we are sure sitting pretty now.

We have a very nice cabin, an outside one, and the first thing I hear in the morning is, "Your bath is ready, Madame." Sure enough bath tub full of nice hot water, towels ready and all I have to do is climb in and wash. Then we have breakfast from 8 to 9 o'clock. After breakfast we walk back and forth then play Deck tennis or shuffle board, and then we go down to the deck and wrap ourselves up in our steamer rugs and sit in our deck chairs and watch the waves. Then we are served a cup of bullion and a cracker at eleven. At twelve, lunch is served and after lunch we read, play bridge or rest. At 4 tea, cakes and sandwiches are served. Then Roy and I go up to the gymnasium and exercise for half an hour and then go to our cabin and dress for dinner. At six dinner is served. After dinner there is dancing and card playing until midnight.

If my shoes need cleaning I just leave them outside my door and someone gets them and they are returned all cleaned. We have to set our watches ahead 40 minutes a day since Wednesday. We went 401 miles Wednesday and 396 miles yesterday which was Thursday. It was very rough yesterday and Roy wrote in the diary that it is damn rough to-day. Neither one of us have been the least sick and it is sure rough to-day for it, if we were going to be. The stewards have put railings on the tables to keep the dishes on.

We are now entering the Gulf Stream and it is just as warm as can be. I wish you could have seen the wonderful baskets of flowers and fruit the Vindex Co. had in our cabin for us. There were six dozens of roses, red white and yellow and a number of early spring flowers and ferns. Honestly, it is just lovely. The basket of fruit was another sight, every fruit you can mention and boxes of salted nuts and box of chocolates. We also had a three pound box of candy sent to us from the County Co. in Portland and a two pound box sent from William's in Philadelphia. Believe me the "400" haven't anything on us!

This will probably be mailed at Madeira as that is our first stop.

I hope this will find you all well. We are and are certainly enjoying the trip. The days go by like lightning. Don't know if you can read this as the boat is doing some rolling and it is sort of an uphill job. Hope you received the cards that I sent when we first started. The starting was sure thrilling. There were about 2000 visitors on board and when they had to leave, there was some commotion. There was a band on the wharf and just as she started to sail, it played, "God be with you until we meet again."

Take care of yourself and keep well. Heaps of love.

Fine Time at the Goodwin Whist Party—Journey of the Big Iron Kettle.

W. J. Greene is better at the present, but has had a hard week past. When the chisel entered his leg so very near the knee, the joint water came out. Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parker of Cumberland Mills made their first trip here for the spring, on Wednesday. Mr. Parker did not expect to drink only to Harrison, but Mr. Haggood telephoned him he could get through so he came. He started for the flat and decided to turn back.

A very pleasant evening was spent on Saturday, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Goodwin, where they entertained at whist. Ten tables were filled and we were sure all had a right jolly good time.

Highest score of the evening was held by Ethel M. Monroe, who was taking a gentleman's place. Mrs. Lizzie Pike highest score for the ladies. W. W. Pike highest score for the men.

Dr. R. E. Hubbard held the highest score and the same number of points. Mrs. Goodwin served delicious home-made cakes during the evening and refreshments of nice vanilla ice cream and cake were served at the close of the evening.

Several from the flat braved the storm and traveling and were present. Mr. Haggood of Brookton, Mass., has been visiting his father-in-law, Chas. York, recently.

Theresa and John Phillips and their two friends from Portland were in town on Saturday, calling on Henry S. Haynes. They came by motor.

Bear M. Community Club spent a pleasant evening on Thursday with Mrs. Flora G. Abbott. Seven ladies were present, not so many as usual, owing to the weather and housecleaning, but those present made their needles fly.

W. E. Abbott was at his bungalow several days the past week and called on all the friends of Brookton, Mass., and religious services were held at the home of W. J. Greene on Sunday evening. Some very pretty songs were played by Mr. Greene on the piano.

W. K. Hamlin has been about sick with a cold for several days, but keeps going on with his work.

Church school was well attended on Saturday in spite of the muddy traveling. Mr. Wentworth was in Portland attending the Methodist Conference and W. L. Bull and A. C. Townsend took charge of the Junior boys.

Dorothy Kimball of Sweden was a week end guest of her grandmother, Mrs. Carrie Klugman.

Last fall Charles Chaplin lost his big iron kettle, which set across the road from his home on Blackguard and they could not find it. Over the last week end, while Wallace Hibbard, the son-in-law, from Bridgton, was visiting there, he and Alton were out hunting for a pole for a smelting net. They located the kettle way off across one of the fields, bottom up against the wall covered with leaves.

How it came there is a mystery! It seems almost impossible for the winds which were very strong last fall, to have taken it there.

WEST LOVELL

Road commissioner Bennett McDaniel was repairing bad places in the road, Saturday.

Manley Grant, teacher at Union Hill school, is boarding at D. M. Fox's. Mrs. Fred Morrill, who has been housekeeper for Mrs. Gus Wiley, where he boarded, has returned to her home in Casco since Mrs. Wiley entered the hospital at Portland. Mr. Wiley, who is at work in Orlando Allard's mill, takes his dinners at George Stearns'.

Julia Gupill has returned from Chatham to D. M. Fox's and is attending school. Mr. and Mrs. Gupill intend to move home soon.

Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Larocque and Willie Gupill were by Byron McAllister's Sunday.

Marvin Fox spent the week end at home from Fryburg Academy.

Alexander Larocque is repairing and painting his boats.

SWEDEN

Seventeen Lent a Friendly Hand to a Friend—Mud Kneedeep.

April 13, and it was Friday, too, seven neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Edw. Bennett, who is suffering from a severe attack of neuritis. Clarence Flint took along his gasoline engine and saving outfit and others took their axes and they tackled the wood pile just as though they meant business, and about 2 p. m. they had it all saved, split and piled up in good shape, which is quite a help when a fellow can't move either hand and the work was highly appreciated by Mr. Bennett and wife.

Mrs. Bennett had a fine dinner for them at noon, which was enjoyed by all. Mr. Bennett is a hard working man, always busy about something, that gives his friends courage to help him when he needs help. He is one who always helps others when they are sick or in trouble.

Mrs. C. A. Saunders helped Mrs. Bennett about the dinner. Take it all around Mr. and Mrs. Bennett reckon Friday, April 13, a pretty lucky day for them.

Wendell Plummer is painting his house, clipping hedges, etc. He and his family spent the day at Clayton Tower's, April 15.

Mud is knee deep everywhere this spring, not many cars out in this locality yet they've been out all winter. They ought to rest a while, that is where the old horse comes in handy.

SWEDEN

Seventeen Lent a Friendly Hand to a Friend—Mud Kneedeep.

April 13, and it was Friday, too, seven neighbors and friends gathered at the home of Edw. Bennett, who is suffering from a severe attack of neuritis. Clarence Flint took along his gasoline engine and saving outfit and others took their axes and they tackled the wood pile just as though they meant business, and about 2 p. m. they had it all saved, split and piled up in good shape, which is quite a help when a fellow can't move either hand and the work was highly appreciated by Mr. Bennett and wife.

Mrs. Bennett had a fine dinner for them at noon, which was enjoyed by all. Mr. Bennett is a hard working man, always busy about something, that gives his friends courage to help him when he needs help. He is one who always helps others when they are sick or in trouble.

Mrs. C. A. Saunders helped Mrs. Bennett about the dinner. Take it all around Mr. and Mrs. Bennett reckon Friday, April 13, a pretty lucky day for them.

Donald Palmer, the grocery man from Bridgton, came as far as Enfield Plummer's with a truck load of groceries last Wednesday morning. He got into the mud twice and had to have help, so he decided he would like for Bridgton while he could. Probably that is his last trip until about the first of May, then Gilman Bros. plan to run a truck through town through the summer. They carry a nice line of goods and are very accommodating.

Wendell Plummer is painting his house, clipping hedges, etc. He and his family spent the day at Clayton Tower's, April 15.

Mud is knee deep everywhere this spring, not many cars out in this locality yet they've been out all winter. They ought to rest a while, that is where the old horse comes in handy.

CONCLUDING ARTICLE ON TAXES

Editor Norway Advertiser: R. L. Cummings in your April 6 issue wonders if I had anything to do with trying to take a certain man's children away from him. I claim that is none of Mr. Cummings' business and as long as I am a liar what difference would it make if I should deny it. If Mr. Cummings wants to know he can probably find out by writing to Miss Alva Drake, Court House, Auburn, Me. There is no doubt but what the children should be taken and placed in a home where they would have a decent chance.

I have always made it a rule to mind my own business and pay my bills (including taxes) and am willing to put my reputation beside that of Mr. Cummings and let the public, who know the three parties, Mr. Cummings, the other man and myself, form their own opinion as to who the liars are. How true the saying that "birds of a feather flock together."

One would think Mr. Cummings would take his Greenwood chum into partnership with him. What a team they would make selling their $2.50 automobiles.
